

ALICE in Wonderland

Illustrated by
RENE CLOKE

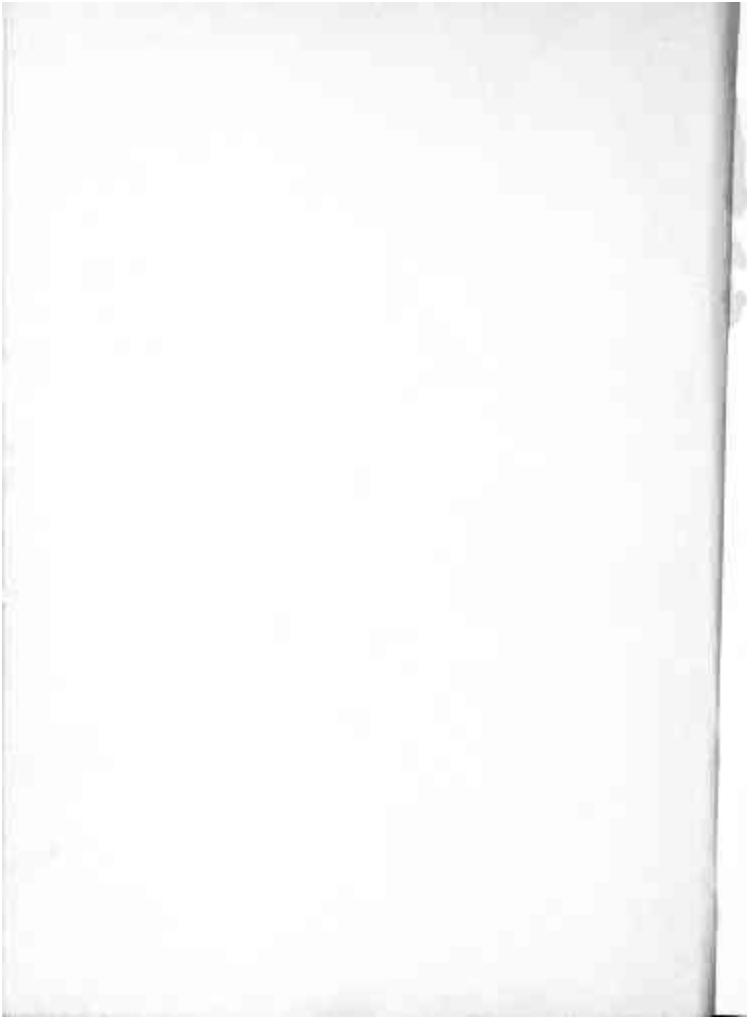

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR
BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT
WASHINGTON, D. C. 20246

Alice in the House of the Doctor.

THE STORY OF ALICE

ALICE'S ADVENTURES IN WONDERLAND

BY LEWIS CARROLL

SAM'L GREENE & CO. NEW YORK
NEW YORK

ALICE'S ADVENTURES IN Wonderland

CHAPTER I. THE DORMANT MOUSE

ALICE was beginning to get very tired of sitting on her back and looking at the ground. She was thinking of getting up and going home, when she noticed a small mouse standing on its hind legs and looking at her. She was very curious to see what the mouse would do next, and she watched it very closely.

The mouse was looking at her for some time, and then it began to move. It went up to her and looked at her face. Alice was very surprised to see that the mouse was looking at her as if it knew her. She was very curious to see what the mouse would do next, and she watched it very closely.

There was nothing in the world like this, and Alice was very curious to see what the mouse would do next. She was very curious to see what the mouse would do next, and she watched it very closely.

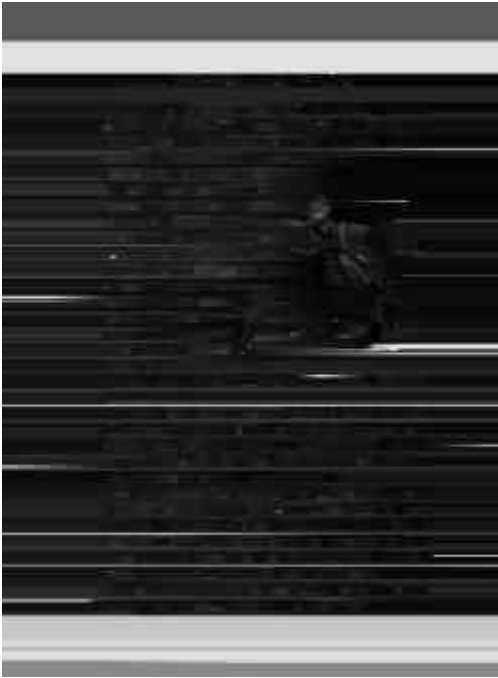

was the Rabbit say to her, "Oh dear! Oh dear! I shall be late!" But when the Rabbit actually took a watch out of its waistcoat-pocket and looked at it, and then hurried on, Alice started to her feet, for ... Rabbit says her mind she was not very late! and when a watch was shown, very much surprised at it, as well as being very much surprised at the fact that she was not very late! and when a watch was shown, very much surprised at it, as well as being very much surprised at the fact that she was not very late! and when a watch was shown, very much surprised at it, as well as being very much surprised at the fact that she was not very late!

The rabbit hole went straight on like a tunnel for some way, and then dipped suddenly down, so suddenly that Alice had not a moment to think about stopping herself before she found herself falling down what seemed to be a very deep well.

Either the well was very deep, or she fell very quickly, for she had plenty of time as she went down, to look about her, and to wonder what was coming to her, but it was so dark, that she could see nothing, except the sides of the well, and she noticed that they were lined with different kinds of books. She saw and heard the new shape and perhaps being upon page. The book shows a far from one of

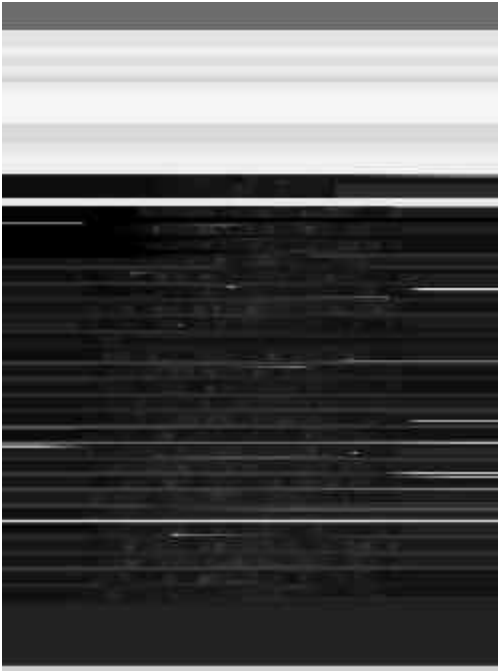

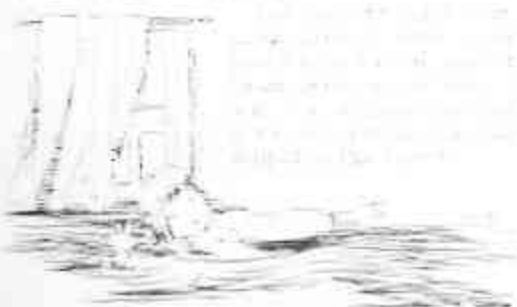

"Would I could say yes, now," thought Alice, "to spend in this house? Everything is so comfortable here now! But this I don't think very likely if the rule of the world works as hard as it ought." So she began. "Would you please tell me the way out of this world? I am very much of wondering about that," she said. "The Mouse looked at her rather curiously, looking and wondering how to speak with her in a little time, but it said nothing.

"Perhaps you'd better ask the English," thought Alice. "I just got it in a perfect house, and I was told that you were a perfect house." So she began again. "I am the house?" which was the first question she had asked. The Mouse gave a sudden look at her and then seemed to answer all over her again. "I am the house?" cried Alice again. "I am the house?" she said. The Mouse looked at her and then seemed to answer all over her again. "I am the house?" she said. The Mouse looked at her and then seemed to answer all over her again.

"I am the house?" she said. The Mouse looked at her and then seemed to answer all over her again. "I am the house?" she said. The Mouse looked at her and then seemed to answer all over her again.

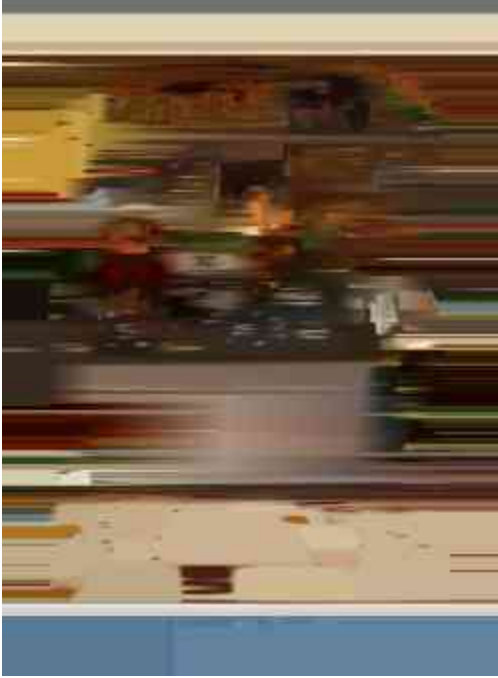

"I am the house?" she said. The Mouse looked at her and then seemed to answer all over her again. "I am the house?" she said. The Mouse looked at her and then seemed to answer all over her again. "I am the house?" she said. The Mouse looked at her and then seemed to answer all over her again.

"I am the house?" she said. The Mouse looked at her and then seemed to answer all over her again. "I am the house?" she said. The Mouse looked at her and then seemed to answer all over her again.

After the Tea Party

THEY WERE ALL IN A SWIMMING PARTY

THEY were all in a swimming party that afternoon in the bay—the boys with their shirts and trousers, the girls with their dresses and hats on their heads, and all dripping wet from the water.

The best person of course was one who got dry again. They had a consultation about this and after a few minutes, it seemed quite natural to Alice to see herself walking happily with them, as if she had known them all her life.

It was the house, who seemed to be a person of

"Speak English!" said the King. "I don't know the meaning of half those long words, and what's more, I don't believe you do either!"

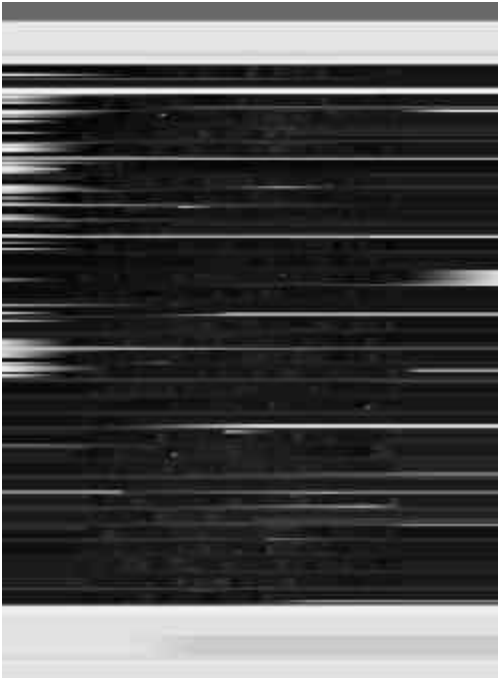

"What I was going to say," said the Duke in an offended tone, "is that the best thing to get to the point of a subject is to get to the point."

"What is it?" said the King.

"This," said the King, "the bird was to speak it as a sign." "That is a great and a very good idea," said the King, and then all the birds were placed along the river, their positions. "There was no time, the birds were to speak," and they began making with their heads and feet of what they liked, as that it was not time to show what the bird was doing. However, when they had been working for an hour or so and were quite far away, the Duke suddenly called out, "The bird is not!" and they all crowded round it, staring and asking, "What was the sign?"

THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS

THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS
THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS

THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS
THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS

THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS
THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS

THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS
THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS

THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS
THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS

THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS
THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS

THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS
THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS

THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS
THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS

THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS
THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS

THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS
THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS

THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS
THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS

THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS
THE LITTLE BOY WHO WAS

THE LITTLE DEVIL AND LITTLE BOY

It was one of those rainy, dreary, cloudy days, when the sun was hidden away in a cloud, and the wind was blowing hard, that the little boy was sitting on the ground, looking at a small, dark, box-like object, which he had found in the garden. He was looking at it with a very great interest, and he was wondering what it was. He had never seen anything like it before, and he was very curious to know what it was. He had found it in the garden, and he was very curious to know what it was. He had never seen anything like it before, and he was very curious to know what it was. He had found it in the garden, and he was very curious to know what it was.

ing, into the grass the sharp stick and would not tell what would happen next.

"The first thing the King was a general chorus of 'There goes the King!' then the Rabbit's voice alone—'There goes the King by the bridge!' Then silence and very another chorus of voices—'He's up the hill!—He's up the hill!—He's up the hill!—That happened to me!'"

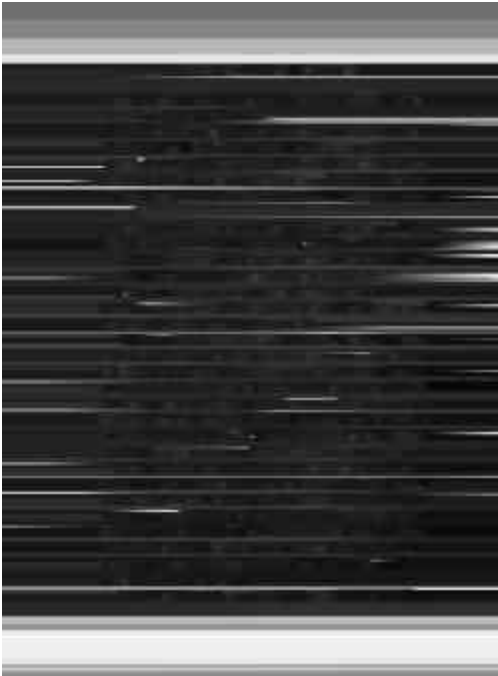

"The King's voice broke sparkling down, 'Well, I don't know—' Silence, thank you.' He looked queer—'I'll make up something more as you like a Jack-an-the-box and so I give you a Jack-an-the-box!'"

"The King's voice of silence, now began rising above again, and Alice heard the King's say 'A chorus of 'All the King's horses!'"

"The King's voice of silence, now began rising above again, and Alice heard the King's say 'A chorus of 'All the King's horses!'"

"The King's voice of silence, now began rising above again, and Alice heard the King's say 'A chorus of 'All the King's horses!'"

"The King's voice of silence, now began rising above again, and Alice heard the King's say 'A chorus of 'All the King's horses!'"

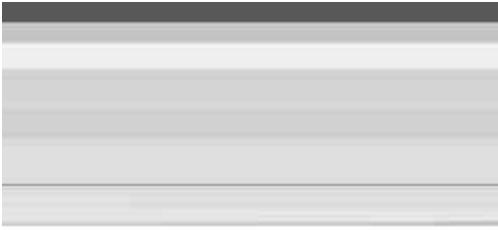

"The Doctors looked at each other and said 'This is a very old story'"

CHAPTER IV. THE WINTER OF 1847.

With all the warnings given in the winter of 1847, the winter of 1847 was severe, and the snow lay deep on the ground, and the wind was high, and the cold was severe. The snow lay deep on the ground, and the wind was high, and the cold was severe.

After wintering at home, he went to the wintering place, and the winter was severe, and the snow lay deep on the ground, and the wind was high, and the cold was severe. The snow lay deep on the ground, and the wind was high, and the cold was severe.

"It's thirty years," the Caterpillar goes down at the mushroom and crawls away, "but the grass grows constantly at it every day. The hole will make you grow taller, and the worm you will make you grow shorter."

"The hole of what? The thing you are talking about?"

"The hole, which," said the Caterpillar, "is a hole in the ground, and is perfectly natural, of course."

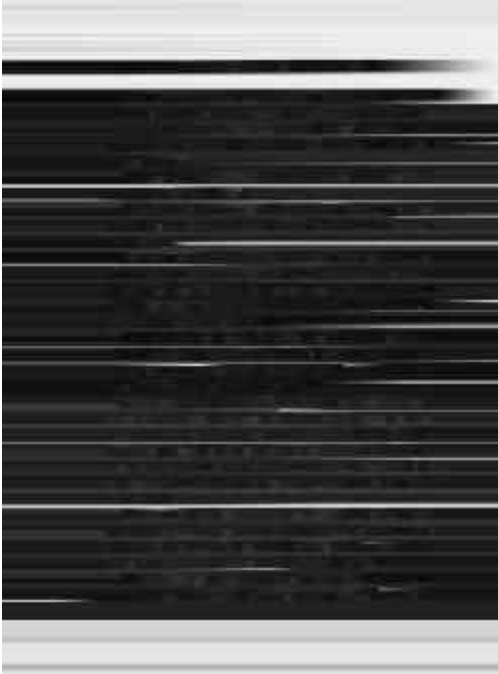

"I'm not talking of that sort of hole," said the mouse. "I'm talking of a hole in the ground, which will make you grow taller, and the worm you will make you grow shorter."

"I'm not talking of that sort of hole," said the mouse. "I'm talking of a hole in the ground, which will make you grow taller, and the worm you will make you grow shorter."

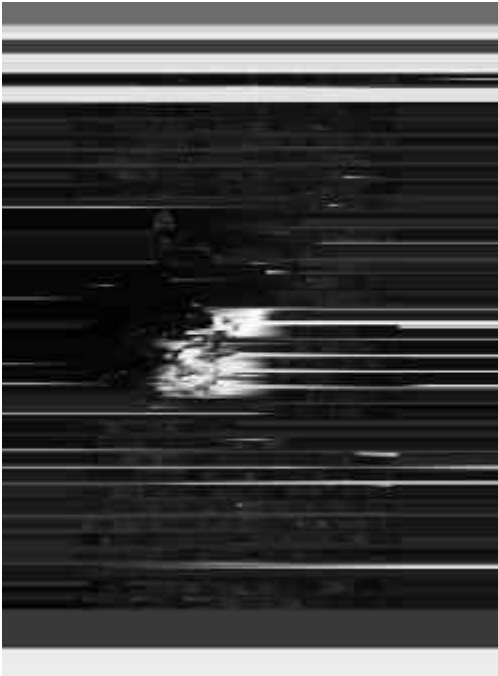

"I'm not talking of that sort of hole," said the mouse. "I'm talking of a hole in the ground, which will make you grow taller, and the worm you will make you grow shorter."

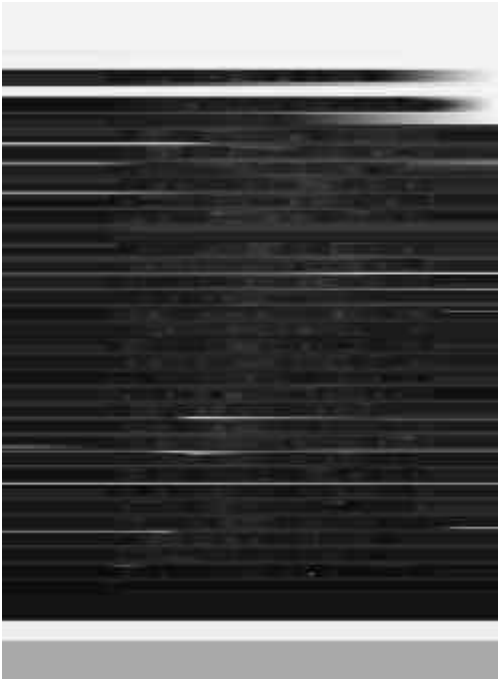

"I'm not talking of that sort of hole," said the mouse. "I'm talking of a hole in the ground, which will make you grow taller, and the worm you will make you grow shorter."

"I'm not talking of that sort of hole," said the mouse. "I'm talking of a hole in the ground, which will make you grow taller, and the worm you will make you grow shorter."

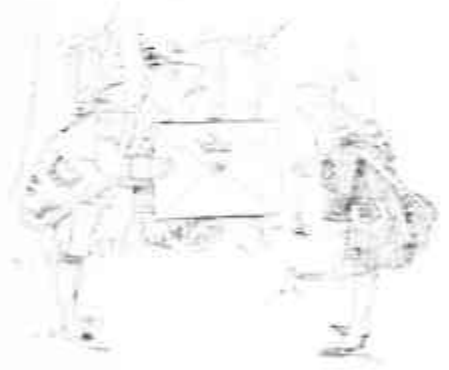

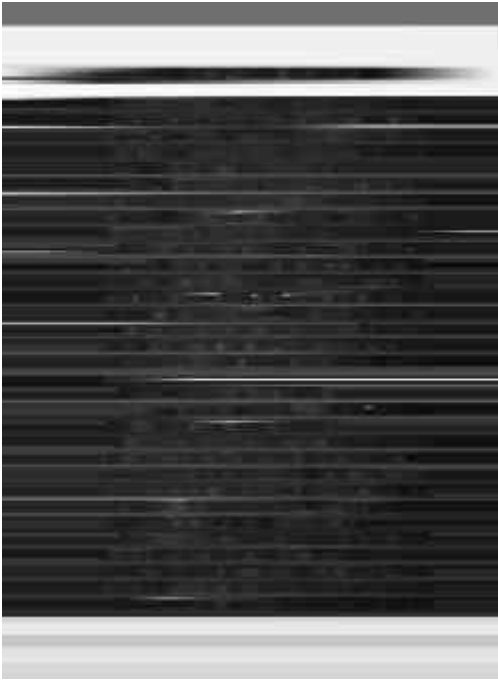

THE TWO KINGS OF THE

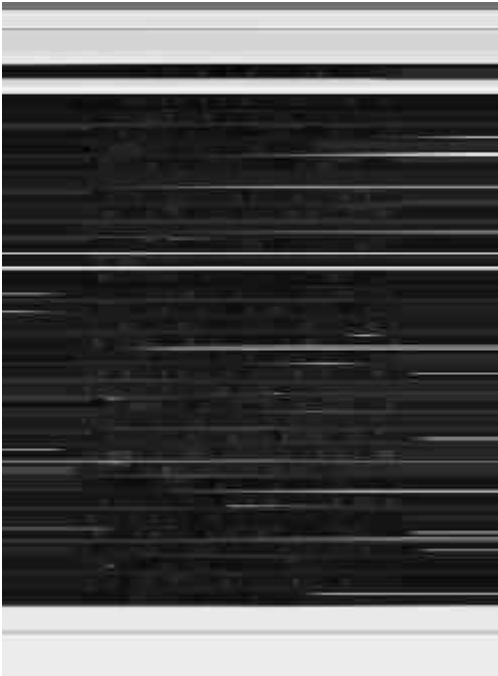

THEY WERE BOTH VERY WISE AND
VERY GOOD MEN. THEY WERE BOTH
VERY POWERFUL AND VERY
VERY WISE. THEY WERE BOTH
VERY GOOD MEN. THEY WERE BOTH
VERY POWERFUL AND VERY

THEY WERE BOTH VERY WISE AND
VERY GOOD MEN. THEY WERE BOTH
VERY POWERFUL AND VERY
VERY WISE. THEY WERE BOTH
VERY GOOD MEN. THEY WERE BOTH
VERY POWERFUL AND VERY

4. STATE OF WISCONSIN

IN SENATE,
JANUARY 1, 1888.

REPORT OF THE

COMMISSIONER OF THE LAND OFFICE

FOR THE YEAR 1887.

WISCONSIN: PRINTED BY THE STATE PRINTER.

1888.

The Told of the Night of the Night

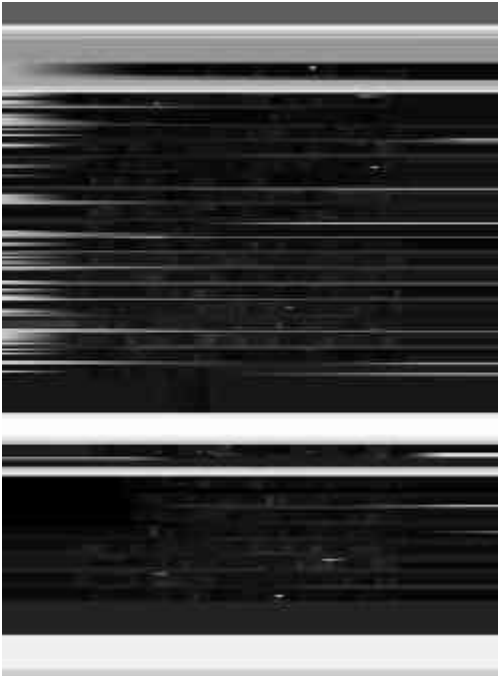

"I'm not sure," she said, "but I think I'm getting a little better."

"I'm not sure," she said, "but I think I'm
getting a little better."

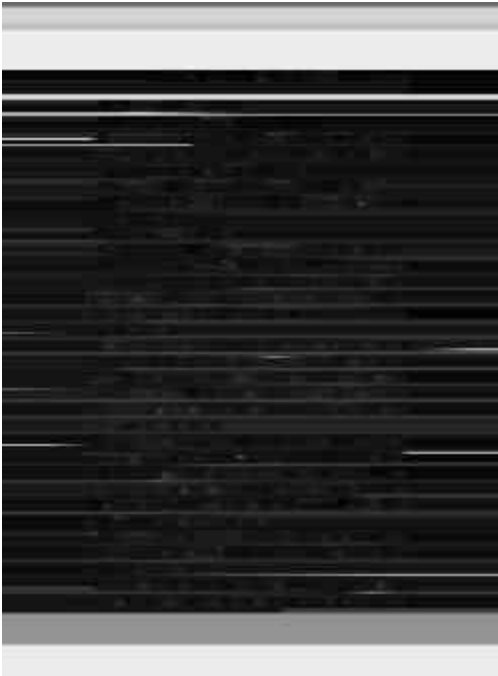

"I'm not sure," she said, "but I think I'm
getting a little better."

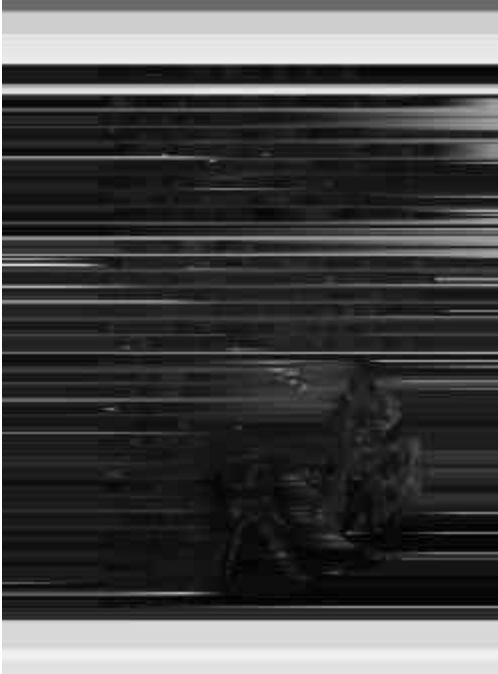

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE MOUNTAIN

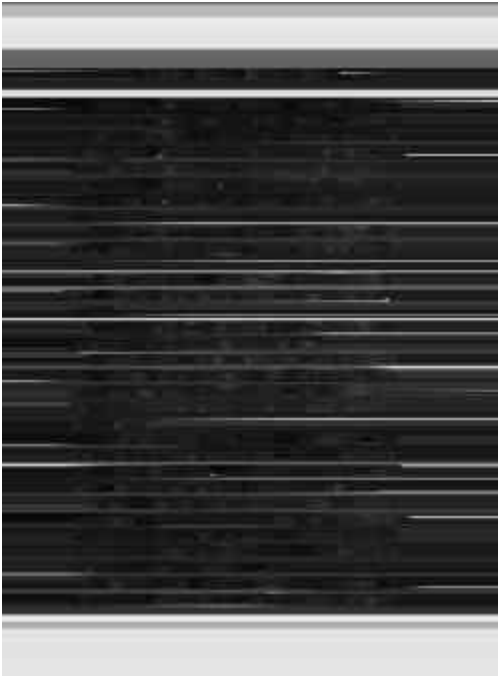

"I'm not sure," she said, "but I think I'm
getting a little better."

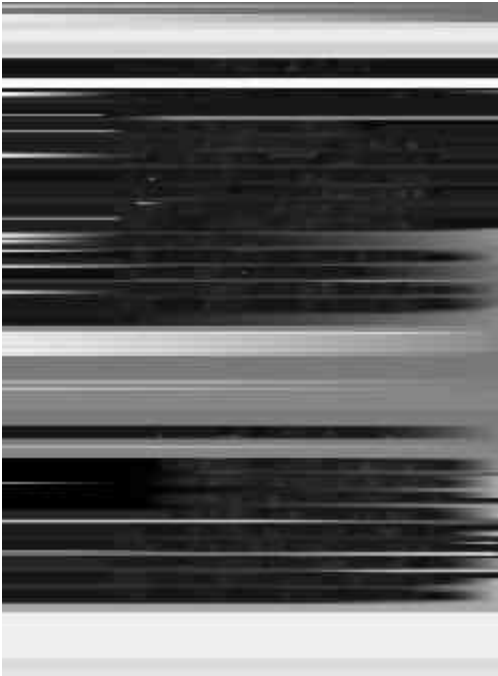

"I thought we'd visited a poor old man and his wife in the past."

"I'm right in with you," said the King with a grin.

"I'm right in with you," said the King, who had just been looking at the old man and his wife
and had seen that they were very poor and old.

"I'm right in with you," said the King, who had
just been looking at the old man and his wife
and had seen that they were very poor and old.

"I'm right in with you," said the King, who had
just been looking at the old man and his wife
and had seen that they were very poor and old.

"I'm right in with you," said the King, who had
just been looking at the old man and his wife
and had seen that they were very poor and old.

"I'm right in with you," said the King, who had
just been looking at the old man and his wife
and had seen that they were very poor and old.

"I'm right in with you," said the King, who had
just been looking at the old man and his wife
and had seen that they were very poor and old.

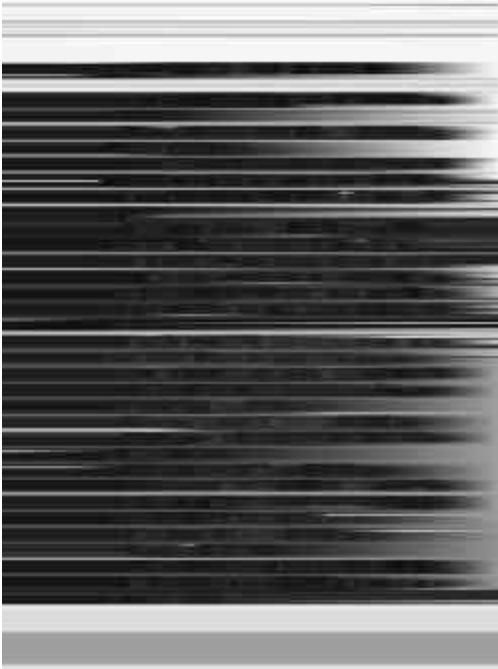

"I'm right in with you," said the King, who had
just been looking at the old man and his wife
and had seen that they were very poor and old.

"I'm right in with you," said the King, who had
just been looking at the old man and his wife
and had seen that they were very poor and old.

"I'm right in with you," said the King, who had
just been looking at the old man and his wife
and had seen that they were very poor and old.

"I'm right in with you," said the King, who had
just been looking at the old man and his wife
and had seen that they were very poor and old.

"I'm right in with you," said the King, who had
just been looking at the old man and his wife
and had seen that they were very poor and old.

"What is the name of the King?"

"The name of the King is King."

"The name of the King is King," said the King, "and the name of the King is King."

"The name of the King is King," said the King, "and the name of the King is King."

"The name of the King is King," said the King, "and the name of the King is King."

CHAPTER 10: THE KINGS

"The name of the King is King," said the King, "and the name of the King is King."

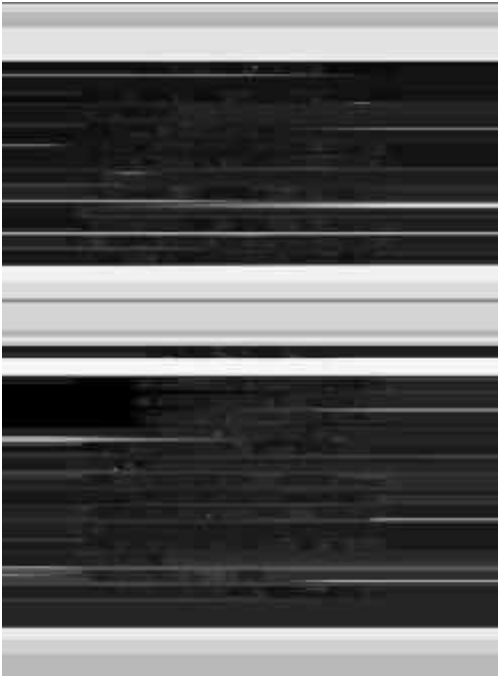

"The name of the King is King," said the King, "and the name of the King is King."

"The name of the King is King," said the King, "and the name of the King is King."

"The name of the King is King," said the King, "and the name of the King is King."

"The name of the King is King," said the King, "and the name of the King is King."

"The name of the King is King," said the King, "and the name of the King is King."

the 12th of the month of the year 1791, at the age of 35.

He was a well known and popular author, and a member of the Academy of the Sciences.

He was a member of the Academy of the Sciences, and
a member of the Academy of
the Sciences, and a member of
the Academy of the Sciences.

He was a member of the Academy of the Sciences, and
a member of the Academy of
the Sciences, and a member of
the Academy of the Sciences.

He was a member of the Academy of the Sciences, and
a member of the Academy of
the Sciences, and a member of
the Academy of the Sciences.

He was a member of the Academy of the Sciences, and
a member of the Academy of
the Sciences, and a member of
the Academy of the Sciences.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

"I have been thinking of you very much," said the King.

poor little white face of fright and half of anger, you need no fear. Don't do that kind of thing (going on the back, with her head on the lap of her mother, you know)!" something very like that lesson Alice had learned about the time she was five.

"Yes," Alice replied, and her sister said, "Why don't you go and see the king?"

"Yes," Alice said, "I will go," and then she went. Alice went to the king, as well as the queen, and the king said, "You are a very good girl, and I will give you a reward. You shall be my daughter, and I will give you a crown." Alice was very happy, and she went home with the king and queen. Alice was very happy, and she went home with the king and queen.

